

Pan-Alberta clinical research training program

Introduction

The ACRC partner organizations are supporting clinical health research teams by subscribing to the Network of Networks (N2) online training resources. Through individual memberships with N2, each organization gains access to CITI-Canada training for their employees. CITI is offered by over 1000 participating institutions, facilities and disease networks around the world; and new courses are added on an ongoing basis.

CITI-Canada is an online clinical research training program that incorporates International Conference on Harmonization - Good Clinical Practice, Tri-Council Policy Statement Edition 2, and Health Canada guidelines. CITI-Canada is developed by CITI (Collaborative Institutional Training Initiative) and N2 (Network of Networks).

Online courses available include:

- Good Clinical Practice (GCP) & Refresher
- Health Canada Division 5
- Responsible Conduct of Research (RCR)
- Biomedical Research Ethics Tutorial
- Social and Behavioral Research
- Transportation of Dangerous Goods TDG/IATA
- Others (institution specific)

After finishing each course, participants can print a certificate as evidence of training.

N2's CITI-Canada aligns with the ACRC's goal of developing 'provincial standards and opportunities for clinical research training'. It is promoted as part of a suite of tools, templates and training which incorporate best practice and applicable guidelines.

Alberta Clinical Research Consortium

The ACRC is a provincial initiative that involves academic and community based researchers and administrators working together to achieve the vision of 'high quality, integrated and efficient clinical research in Alberta'.

The goal is to make it easier to do quality research that will improve patient outcomes in the province.

Who can participate in CITI-Canada?

CITI-Canada is a resource for experienced and novice researchers, study coordinators, service departments and clinical staff in academic, healthcare and community-based settings.

There is no cost to participate for members of AHS, AI, CPSA, Covenant Health, UofA and UCalgary as it is covered through the organizations membership with N2.

If you are not a member of one the above organizations, you can still participate in CITI Training as an Independent Learner. Contact n2@n2canada.ca for more information.

Do pharmaceutical companies accept CITI-Canada GCP as equivalent to their GCP training?

Several pharmaceutical companies accept completion of CITI-Canada as equivalent to their GCP training requirement. It is also being considered by other companies. Please check the ACRC CITI Canada page for the latest list.

If you encounter a pharmaceutical company that does not accept CITI-Canada GCP training, please let us know, and we can help advocate.

How long do the courses take to complete and can it be done over a period of time?

Each course takes approximately three hours to complete. You can start and stop at any time.

Are CME/CEU credits available?

Yes, continuing education (CE) credits are available for most affiliations (e.g. medical, dental, nursing, pharmacy, psychology, social worker, etc.).

Check the ACRC CITI Canada page for instructions on how to claim CE credits for the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons, The College of Family Physicians of Canada, SOCRA, ACRP, and CARNA.

How do I access the CITI-Canada training?

Follow the instructions on page 3 of this manual to register under your organization.

Does CITI-Canada cover investigator training?

Check with the pharmaceutical company if the CITI-Canada GCP course is accepted as equivalent to their GCP training. Note, study-specific training will still be required.

I am already registered in CITI-Canada. Can I share my training with AHS, AI, Covenant Health, UofA or UCalgary?

Yes, for individuals who have already enrolled in the CITI-Canada training program and want to share your information with another group, select 'affiliate with another institution' on the Main Menu and then add the institution'.

You will need to select each course you wish to share with the new institution. Note, if the record indicates incomplete, you may need to complete an additional module.

What is the difference between CITI and CITI-Canada?

CITI-Canada is based on CITI, which was developed by the University of Miami and the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center, and focuses on GCP and the FDA regulations. N2, in partnership with CITI, customized the training to include Health Canada and TCPS2 guidelines for the N2 member organizations.

N2 is a national non-profit alliance of clinical research stakeholders (disease networks, institutions, universities, and industry) collaboratively working towards common practices and harmonization where possible. The CITI –Canada training program is one of the resources that have been developed.

Acknowledgements

This training was made possible through the Network of Networks (N2). Special acknowledgement to ACRC Training Working Group Members: Mary-Ann Clarkes - Covenant Health; Marilyn David - AHS; Troy Hamilton – UCalgary; Scott Jamieson – UAlberta; Linda Longpré – UCalgary; Lorelee Robertson – AHS, Becky Wong – AHS, and Tamara Murray - AI for their support in the implementation of this resource in Alberta.

The screenshot shows the CITI Learner Registration interface. At the top, there is a navigation bar with a Canadian flag, language options (Canada - English), text size controls (A A), and links for Log In, Register, and Help. Below this is the CITI PROGRAM logo and the text 'Collaborative Institutional Training Initiative at the University of Miami', along with a search bar for the Knowledge Base. A main navigation menu includes Home, About Us, Our Education Platform, Become A Subscriber, Accessing CITI Content, and Contact Us. The current page is titled 'CITI - Learner Registration' and shows a progress indicator for 7 steps, with step 1 highlighted. A message states 'You must make a selection below.' The main section is 'Select Your Organization Affiliation', which includes a search box for organization names, a link for those who can't find their institution, and a note about the search functionality. At the bottom of this section are 'Continue to Step 2' and 'Search Again' buttons. Below this is the 'Independent Learner Registration' section, which provides contact information for independent learners.

Steps 2-6: These pages contain prompts for personal information, user name and password setup. Complete all required fields as you navigate through the screens.

Step 7: Choose your curriculum by clicking the course(s) you wish to take. Note, you will be able to add or remove courses from your curriculum at any time after registration is complete.

In the next screen, you may be asked to indicate your learning group/role (e.g. investigator, research staff, student etc.). You will need to identify your learning group for each course selected in the previous screen.

In the next screen select "Finalize Registration". Shortly after registering, you will receive a confirmation email for your reference.

Registration is now COMPLETE!

B. Manage your CITI Canada Courses

1. On the Main Menu of your CITI-Canada account is the list of courses you are currently registered in and the completion status of each.
2. To start a course, click on the course name.
3. You will be prompted to complete an Integrity Assurance Statement before starting the first module.
4. At any time you can add or remove courses from your curriculum by clicking "Add a Course or Update Learner Groups".

The screenshot shows the CITI PROGRAM interface for the Collaborative Institutional Training Initiative at the University of Miami. The header includes the CITI PROGRAM logo, the text "Collaborative Institutional Training Initiative at the University of Miami", and a search bar labeled "Search Knowledge Base". Below the header is a navigation menu with links for "Main Menu", "My Profiles", "CE Credit Status", "My Reports", and "Support".

The main content area displays a section titled "Alberta Innovates Courses" with a table of course details:

Course	Status	Completion Report	Survey

Below the table is a section titled "My Learner Tools for Alberta Clinical Research Consortium (ACRC)" with a list of options:

- Add a Course or Update Learner Groups
- View Previously Completed Coursework
- Update Institution Profile
- View Instructions page
- View Contact Information
- Remove Affiliation

At the bottom of the interface, there is a link: "Click here to affiliate with another institution".

C. Affiliate with another Institution

For individuals who have already taken the CITI-Canada training program and want to share your information with other organizations, you can do so from the CITI-Canada Main Menu. Click on the link indicated below (Click here to affiliate with another institution) and follow the prompts. You will need to select each course you wish to share with the new institution. Note, if the record indicates incomplete, this means that you need to take an additional module required by the newly affiliated institution.
